SECTION 6

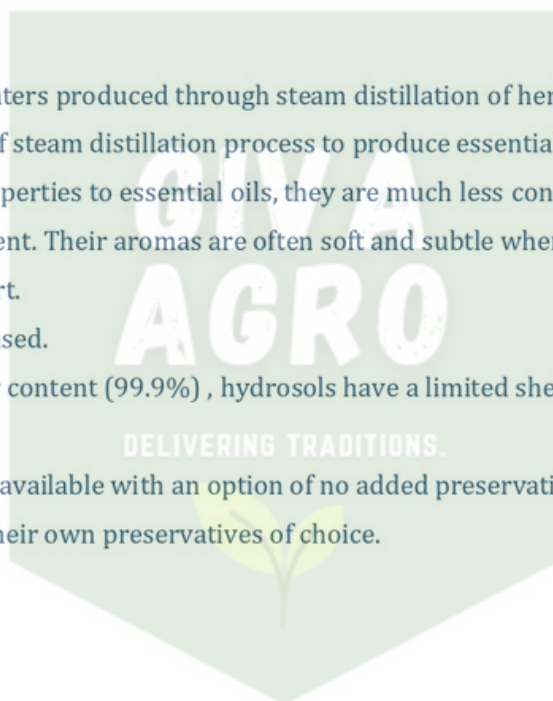

HYDROSOLS

Hydrosols are floral waters produced through steam distillation of herbs and flowering tops. They are also a by-product of steam distillation process to produce essential oils. While they have similar therapeutic properties to essential oils, they are much less concentrated than essential oils due to high water content. Their aromas are often soft and subtle when compared to their essential oil counterpart.

Hydrosols are water based.

Due to their high water content (99.9%) , hydrosols have a limited shelf life which necessitates the use of preservatives.

Our hydrosols are also available with an option of no added preservatives and the users are free to use them as is or add their own preservatives of choice.
